Krasner's colleagues or the special relationship between the parties. Cf. id. at 25-26. The psychiatrist's theory, although factually implausible, is not objectively unreasonable. In any event, it is clear that Krasner's decision to refuse to submit to treatment was made knowingly and voluntarily. As noted above, Krasner was informed of his rights in the 1987 application for commitment and, having been advised of those rights, she knowingly and voluntarily surrendered her liberty to the Hospital. An additional basis for rejecting Krasner's insanity claim is the absence of any ex post facto violation because she was placed in involuntary mental health services upon her release from the Forensic Unit. See Foucha, 504 U.S. at 76, 112 S.Ct. at 1789; Lynch v. Baxley, 744 F.2d 1452, 1454-55 (11th Cir.1984). On April 1, 1989, a Board of Supervisors, the predecessor to a Superintendent, suspended Krasner's outpatient commitment and placed her in the Hospital for a ninety-day period of observation. Krasner was released on June 22, 1989, and a Superintendent was appointed on August 2, 1989. Because a new Superintendent was appointed, the 1987 application control under the MHLTA no longer applied. When a Superintendent is appointed, the MHLTA gives way to the MHPA, and the Superintendent's duty is to maintain the committed person in a hospital "only for such a period as he deems necessary to effect a recovery of such person's mental health..., or when the Superintendent believes such person is in immediate danger of serious physical harm to himself or others or that such person's recovery is unlikely within a reasonable time." [1] Accordingly, the 1987 application's limitations no longer apply to Krasner. CONCLUSION Accordingly, for the reasons set forth above, the Hospital's motion to dismiss, treated as a motion for summary judgment, is GRANTED. The clerk is DIRECTED to enter judgment in favor of the Hospital dismissing this action with prejudice. IT IS SO ORDERED

It provides the following main features: Advertisement Opinions and stereotypes may have hindered the economic development of Roanoke, Virginia, a pocket of Appalachia, but the area does have its share of impressive, forward-thinking, and innovative people. Last weekend, 75 of them got together to make a movie, to tell their story. Next month, the film will be screened in New York and beyond. We look forward to seeing it — and you are invited to the screening, hosted by the New York Times. What's the movie about? All we know is that this is not your normal documentary. From beginning to end, the movie defies easy categorization. One person in the cast identifies himself as an "angry young man"; one as a "gender queer"; another as an "anti-racist," while others are proudly "disabled" or "black and disabled." As this half-hour of mostly silent, black-and-white footage gets going, the sense is that the 70 or so people gathered in a hilly, sleepy, close-knit setting, are there to tell, and we're invited to listen, to discover, to feel the pulse of the community and our own hearts. Of course we can't put our finger on the subtext, but we can try to guess what's going on. Women on the margins The concept of "woman on the margins" is not original. But it appears women on the margins are everywhere in Roanoke. According to a brochure distributed at the screening, "There's an official language: English, often infused with colloquialisms and edd6d56e20
