Lipopolysaccharide (LPS) from Salmonella abortus equi (LPS-SEA) causes rapid desensitization of the extracellular signal-transducing response of macrophages to subsequent exposure to LPS-SEA. The LPS-induced desensitization was dose-dependent and irreversible, with desensitization observed at LPS-SEA concentrations as low as 0.01 micrograms/ml. LPS-induced desensitization was specific for LPS-SEA since neither of 81e310abbf
