I have a c# application and I'm trying to implement a remote operation where on the end user machine the same c# code would run and execute a different.exe on a remote server. The 'call' side is rather simple to implement, just running the exe on the remote host. However, for any exe that requires writing to the hard drive, the user would have to give that permission. My question is, is there a way to bypass this? I cannot ask the user for this permission, as the program is for internal 3da54e8ca3
