Only working locally I've been developing an app in Node.js & Express.js and deploying it on Heroku. I've deployed the app successfully and my site works fine when I'm on my localhost. However, when I try to access it by calling / it'll display an error. Error: listen EACCES 0.0.0.0:3000 My Procfile is: web: node server.js I haven't added any heroku specific settings, and I've tried stopping, and restarting the dyno and the site doesn't work after that. Any idea where I should look? A: For those who are having this issue. I think the problem was in my index.js file. Here is what I changed and it worked: // resolve absolute paths from a string const g = require('path').resolve; const {join} = require('path'); // resolve directory of script, e.g. bin/www => /home/myuser/dev/routes/bin/www const script = join(process.cwd(), 'server.js'); // get port from environment variable const PORT = process.env.PORT || '3000'; module.exports = { PORT }; on some of these animals. It's time to stop hiding the truth The food industry is full of bizarre and disgusting stuff. While we're at it, we can stop treating animals as things and start treating them as individuals. Just ask the snake. Looking back, the truth is the obvious. Stop hiding it. Start telling the real story. This is the message that one company is trying to put out. Stop Being Nice? In the very near future, we'll be able to
