We report a case of dermatomyositis which began with an episode of myoglobinuria in a 15 year-old boy. The child was admitted for a 2-week history of proximal joint pain with transient dysphonia and mild weakness of the distal musculature. These symptoms accompanied by an urticarial rash led to the diagnosis of dermatomyositis, which was confirmed by electromyographic and muscle biopsy findings. The latter were those of active myositis and confirmed the presence of anti-Jo-1 antibodies in the serum. Treatment with corticosteroids and CyA was initiated and rapid improvement occurred. The boy's condition did not deteriorate even after the diagnosis was made. This good prognosis was confirmed by a follow-up study of 5-years duration. This observation is discussed and the literature reviewed.

HACKENSACK — An honor roll student who was shown to be a daily marijuana user is now facing a felony drug charge. Mitchell Rekowitz, 16, of Hackensack, was busted on Dec. 19, after his parents found small amounts of marijuana on his person in Hackensack, according to his father. “This is the first time I’ve ever seen marijuana in his life,” said Mitchell Rekowitz Sr., 41, a psychologist who grew up on the same block as his son, but not in the same home. “He wasn’t smoking it; he was using it for a research project.” His father said he was unaware of the budding marijuana enthusiast. “He never told me

Is there a way to sync the access point wifi locations on both machines? I thought about using imap, but can't find any tools. thanks m A: This isn't really about programming, this is really about configuration and programing. I suggest you don't mess with a software solution to this problem since it is a pain to deal with when things go wrong. To set this up you need to understand the actual networking components of windows, and then you need to understand the the configuration of a wireless device. I would recommend the following setup for your two client computers: Get a Netgear WG111v2 or Cisco AirPort Extreme with a NAS router (also known as a "Wireless Bridge") such as: Netgear WG111v2 Linksys WRT1900AC Cisco AWE1151N D-Link DGL-5810E QNAP QTSwitches: and the following software: Radmin (on the NAS router) RDC-N router and then off you go with setup that works for your specific network topology. The four-year price freeze on new housing starts in the West Bank was due to lapse at the end of last month. There has been no announcement that it has, or will be, renewed. It is now either a matter of waiting, or starting work on another building. The Israeli government has not taken to Twitter, Facebook or any other social media outlet and has made no direct statement about the potential lapse in the four-year freeze on building. At the very least, the fact that there has been no such announcement or statement seems to suggest that the freeze has not continued and will not continue. The four-year freeze on new housing construction in the West Bank was imposed in 2013. Its purpose was to curb the construction of new settlements and incentivize Israeli authorities to build housing for those living in existing settlements. In 2013, the freeze was in effect for four years. It was renewed in 2017 for a full four years, starting this year, through January 2018. It was not renewed. People living in existing settlements and those who were not living in new settlements (those not living in construction which was underway in 2013) were subject to a 10% tax surcharge on what they paid for their housing, or a sum equivalent to 10% of the cost of construction, for housing they had actually paid for. Israel maintains that the aim of the freeze was to encourage settlement. In a report published in March 2017, the Israeli rights group Yesh Din said that this policy had the “predetermined, direct purpose of countering the ongoing process of annexation of the West Bank and strengthening
