: Favor Of Fate Gentleman er, panda Titilek has a well-known disdain for the reclusive Oracle, however, he appears to have business with him. Even so, he has no clue that the hero of his team, Baeloth of Alahan's Grove, has been hired by Lady Quan, who guards the Oracle, to keep him company and learn of the Oracle's plans and aspirations. This aid was mentioned to him by Quan herself, but the hero of his team, being a champion of destiny, thought it was an act of genuine friendship and he accepted the offer. Thus, Quan ran off with the tragic fate of the Oracle. Titilek will save the hero of his team at great expense, but it really doesn't matter. The team leader pursues him anyway, not fearing the consequences of Quan's secret hidden to everyone. After trading blows with Titilek in his most powerful and non-tactical manner, she waltzes away, leaving her team-mate to deal with him. Even if he won, he will probably not be able to do much to her, and the Oracle knows that his interest in this matter doesn't have anything to do with money. Titilek shows up again in the Oracle's sanctuary. He informs the hero of his allegiance and his equal tone of voice with the Oracle make clear his wish to be his companion. Answering him with his most regretful expression and a suspicious look, even though he is sure of his superiority to this mere mortal, he gives him a certain Gift, and of course, he returns to Alahan's Grove. All this is noticed by the Oracle, who places a ward of protection that allows her hero to continue his secret training. When the time comes, he will become worthy of her company. At the bottom of the race, a disappointing appearance from an opponent he will definitely be able to deal with won't stop him from shouting hurrah when he notices that Baeloth has managed to stay behind. After the conclusion of the unofficial race at the bottom of the mine, he goes of to meet the problem. He doesn't challenge his opponent in a duel right away, wondering what kind of power he has to deal with. It turns out to be a full-fledged group, whose members clearly know each other by reputation. This is more than enough to remind him of his team-mate, who just may pose a problem. Titilek
