(London, England) -- Two British tourists die in a fire sparked by a fireworks explosion in Copenhagen. Concluding an unusual birthday party at the weekend, 29 year-old school teacher Damian Metcalfe and his friend, Michael Banks, 35, had gathered a bag of fireworks and were drinking lager in the Danish city. On Monday morning, Metcalfe and Banks were wrapped in blankets on a bench when a nearby display of fireworks went off; it ignited a fire which took hold of the building they were sitting in. The pair were taken to hospital where they both died from their burns, AP reports. The cause of the blaze has yet to be ascertained. Denmark fire safety authorities said that no one else was harmed. Although fireworks often cause amusement during holiday celebrations, deadly accidents are not uncommon in Denmark and are blamed on strong winds which swirl pyrotechnic flames around building. Genetic resources for engineering wheat for biofuel production. Potential pathways for biofuel production are being actively pursued due to increases in oil prices and concerns related to carbon emissions. Wheat has long been recognized as a potential biofuel feedstock, because of its high biomass yield and efficiency at converting biomass into oil. However, the productivity of first generation biofuels using annual crops such as wheat remains relatively low due to limited genetic variability and an inability to cultivate the crop under stress conditions. Genomic resources are available for many species in the tribe Triticeae, including wheat, and transcriptomic and whole genome sequencing resources have been used to identify genes that regulate biofuel traits. Recent work in wheat has found significant variation for yield in a

In addition, recent advances in marker assisted breeding and genomic selection can be effectively applied to increase the efficiency of biofuel production from wheat.Q: Can't localize files of UWP app written in C# I'm trying to localize a UWP (VS2017) app that is written in C#.
