What's New In?

Welcome to GmailDefaultMaker, This application is developed to be used to save you time when creating a email link to your favorite mail provider. This application will have a configuration file and after that it will ask you to choose your favorite mail provider. Once you choose one, the application will ask you to set your default mailto application to this one. By doing so your links will start to use your preferred mail client as default mail client. If you want to change this default mail client you have to open this application again and make changes on the configuration file. Features: -Set your favorite mail client as default mail client. -Rename or delete the existing configuration file. -Set your name and description. -You can choose to have the application exit (with the results of the action). Instructions: 1. Select and choose the mail provider you want to use. 2. Set the description of your default mail client application. 3. Set the name of your application. 4. The default mail client will be set as default, this action will have no effects if you have already set your default mail client. 5. Please note: the default mail client application is a part of the application configuration file. 6. You can rename the existing configuration file by clicking on Rename, or delete it by clicking on Delete. Please note: - The application is in the Beta phase, and is still under development. - If you find any bugs or bugs that are still there in the future, feel free to open a issue on the GitHub repository. Compatibility: - Microsoft Windows 8, 8.1, 10, XP and Vista (32-bit and 64-bit). How to get the latest version: - Open this page in your browser and choose Download for Windows, you can get the link to the.exe file. - Open the downloaded.exe file. - Follow the instructions on the installation wizard. Note: - The application is going to install the "Prevent third-party toolbars and extensions" system settings entry. - If you see the message "System has blocked third party toolbars and extensions". - Please do the following: - Click on the OK button on the dialog. - Right click on the task bar and select the option: "Open Task Manager" - Find there the application named: "Google Chrome" - Click on the End button to open the program. - Under: "End tasks" search for the application you want to change the system settings entry. - Right click on the entry and select: "Set as default" -
