Once an image is shared, any changes made are instantly reflected in the other designer's Photoshop file, and vice versa, without needing to make further changes to the image in the editor, saving time and improving the look of the project. The new app also enables users to collaborate with others using Apple® FaceTime. Editors can choose to interact with the incoming photo in the app, or continue editing the image directly in Photoshop. And even if a tool isn't necessary to update the image, the app will now engage and notify editors to ensure that they are kept up-to-date.
